

Worksheet: Proposal Draft

Use this worksheet to draft a real proposal, check your email etiquette, and prepare a clean delivery/handoff. Fill in your own answers below each blank template section. A filled example follows each section for reference.

Part 1: Proposal Template (Fill This In)

Client's ask (in their words):

Understanding of Need (restate their ask in your own words, 1–2 sentences):

My Approach (how you'll do the work, 2–3 sentences):

What's Included (specific bullet list):

- -----
- -----
- -----
- -----

Price:

Timeline (specific date or day-count):

Next Steps (what the client does to confirm):

Part 2: Client Email Etiquette Checklist

Check each box before you hit send on any client message:

- ☐ I greeted them by name (or a friendly general greeting if I don't have one).
 - ☐ I responded within the window I told them to expect (or within 24 hours if I haven't stated one yet).
 - ☐ My tone is clear, warm, and concise — not stiff/formal, not texting-casual.
 - ☐ I answered their actual question before adding anything else.
 - ☐ If I'm asking something, I asked one clear question at a time (not a long list).
 - ☐ I did not oversell ("this will be amazing!") — I described what I'll actually do.
 - ☐ I reread my message once before sending.
 - ☐ I signed off with my name.
-

Part 3: Delivery / Handoff Checklist

Use this every time you finish a job — this is exactly what you'll be scored on in Lesson 8's Client Simulation.

- ☐ Deliverable sent — the finished file(s) are attached or linked, in the format the client needs (e.g., PDF and PNG, not just one).
 - ☐ Instructions included — a short note on how to use/open/edit the file (e.g., "The PNG is for posting online, the PDF is for printing at full size").
 - ☐ Thank-you note — a brief, genuine line thanking them for the opportunity.
 - ☐ Invite for feedback — a line inviting them to ask for small tweaks or share what they think (within the revision limit you agreed to).
-

Filled Example: Proposal for "Jordan R."

Client's ask: "Hey! I'm starting a small Etsy shop selling handmade bracelets and I need someone to organize my sales and expenses in a spreadsheet — I have no idea what I'm doing with numbers. Can you help?"

Understanding of Need: You'd like a simple spreadsheet to track your Etsy sales and expenses so you can see how much you're actually making, since you're just getting started with the business side.

My Approach: I'll build a Google Sheet with a Sales tab, an Expenses tab, and a Summary tab that automatically calculates your profit. I'll set it up so you can just type in new numbers each week without needing to touch any formulas.

What's Included: - A Google Sheet with 3 tabs: Sales, Expenses, Summary - Automatic profit calculation on the Summary tab - Color-coded formatting so it's easy to read - A short instructions page (or note) explaining how to enter new sales/expenses - One round of revisions if something doesn't match how you actually track things

Price: $20

Timeline: First draft within 4 days of you confirming; final version within 2 days after your feedback.

Next Steps: Reply "yes" and send me an example of a recent sale and expense (just so I can format the columns correctly), and I'll get started.

Jordan's Full Message (as it would actually be sent)

Hi Jordan,

Thanks so much for reaching out! Here's what I understand and how I'd approach it:

Understanding of Need: You'd like a simple spreadsheet to track your Etsy sales and expenses so you can see how much you're actually making.

My Approach: I'll build a Google Sheet with a Sales tab, an Expenses tab, and a Summary tab that automatically calculates your profit, set up so you can just type in new numbers each week without touching any formulas.

What's Included: - A Google Sheet with 3 tabs: Sales, Expenses, Summary - Automatic profit calculation on the Summary tab - Color-coded formatting for easy reading - A short instructions note on how to enter new sales/expenses - One round of revisions

Price: $20

Timeline: First draft within 4 days of you confirming; final version within 2 days after your feedback.

Next Steps: Just reply "yes" and send me an example of a recent sale and expense so I can format the columns correctly, and I'll get started!

Thanks, [Your name]

Jordan's Filled Handoff Checklist (after finishing the work)

- [x] Deliverable sent — Link to the finished Google Sheet, shared with edit access.
- [x] Instructions included — "I added a 'How to Use This' tab as the first tab in the sheet — just type new sales into the green rows and it'll update your totals automatically."
- [x] Thank-you note — "Thanks so much for trusting me with this, Jordan — I hope it makes tracking your shop way easier!"
- [x] Invite for feedback — "If anything doesn't quite match how you track things, let me know — I've got one round of revisions included, so just tell me what you'd like changed."